4. Improved quality of life, health, mental health, and employment can be achieved through housing.

Harm Reduction

Harm reduction policies, procedures, and practices aim to reduce the negative consequences of behaviors that are detrimental to the participant's health and well-being (i.e., abuse of drugs and/or alcohol, failure to be medication compliant, engaging in criminal activity, prostitution, choosing to sleep outside, etc.). In housing settings, harm reduction is intended to prevent a participant's loss of housing and/or termination from the program based solely on his or her inability to stop engaging in harmful behaviors.

Programs incorporating a harm reduction model must utilize all interventions possible, short of termination from the program, to enable the participant to reduce or minimize their risky behaviors, while at the same time assisting them to move into and become stabilized in permanent housing. Harm reduction is not intended to prevent the termination of a participant whose actions or behavior constitute a threat to the safety of other participants and staff. Organizations must develop a set of policies and procedures to be implemented in the event of such behavior on the part of a participant.

Trauma-Informed Care

Trauma-informed care requires that every part of the program's design and operation be approached with an understanding of trauma and the impact it has on those receiving services. Traumatic experiences can impact how clients receive services provided and the environment in which those services are delivered.

Establishing a safe and supportive environment are principal aspects of trauma-informed care. To do so, a program must ensure that all staff receive training on traumatic stress and its impact, as well as the relationship between trauma and mental health, substance use, and homelessness. Training should detail how working with trauma survivors can impact staff, and how these issues can impact their work. Staff training in crisis management may include learning how to help clients identify triggers, express their feelings safely, and use healthy coping skills, in addition to helping clients develop safety and self-care plans prior to a crisis.

Cultural Competency, Racial Equity, and Inclusivity

Programs must consider cultural and linguistic competency, racial equity, gender inclusivity, and other intersecting factors in addressing the needs of the populations to be served. Subpopulation identities may include, but are not limited to, race and ethnicity, gender and gender identity, sexual orientation, economic class, age, family status, language spoken and understood, physical and mental disabilities, living situation, etc. The Street Outreach Team requires, at a minimum, effective communication, including, among other things, the provision of service and information in appropriate language, at appropriate educational and literacy levels, and in the context of the individual's cultural identity
