STUDY SESSION

A 25-0968 Public Art Annual Update

Kristin Dance, Public Art Manager and Trenton Hill, Recreation Services Manager, presented an overview of current and upcoming public art initiatives. Highlights included: updates on Art in Private Development projects, progress on Art in Public Places installations and maintenance, a preview of Art in the Park, planning for Hands on the Arts 2025, and a look ahead at future Art in Public Places efforts.

B 25-1006 Provide Input for Annual Boards and Commissions Study Session

Chair Veith invited commissioners to discuss potential suggestions for the upcoming Boards and Commissions Study Issue process. The ideas generated will be revisited at the November Council meeting, where chairs and vice chairs will have the opportunity to present them to the City Council on behalf of their respective commissions.

No suggestions were offered. Chair Veith closed the item and proceeded to the next agenda item.

ORAL COMMUNICATIONS

Valerie, an in-person member of the public, provided a presentation on the SNAIL community's request for snail-themed public art to be included in the upcoming Columbia Park playground replacement.

Commissioners asked questions of Valerie and staff regarding the current state of public art at Columbia Park, the timeline for the playground replacement, and whether funding for public art is included in the project budget.

Valerie noted that there are currently no art installations at Columbia Park and that the playground replacement has been postponed to 2027. Staff also shared that they have not yet been informed whether public art is planned for the renovation but will follow up with the Department of Public Works, as the project falls under that department's purview.

Staff noted that there are opportunities for both the community and the commission to participate in the Columbia Park renovation process. If public art is included in the project, staff can guide selected artists to incorporate community-preferred themes. Additionally, when forming the artist selection jury, staff can include members of the surrounding community to ensure local input is represented in the process.
