

PATHLINE PARK ART PROGRAM

PHASE 1
TORSION
 7' H x 7' W x 7' D

Cutting and folding work to achieve a minimalist form, Torsion is a transition from horizontal to vertical that provides the illusion of movement. By placing the work on a mound and facing a horizontal building, Torsion turns to the sky in a perpetual motion, emerging out of the ground against a backdrop of linear stillness. By walking around the sculpture, visitors are able to observe different angles and interpret the illusion of movement. The sculpture is nestled alongside the Hetch Hetchy Easement.

PATHLINE PARK ART PROGRAM

PHASE 1

TORSION

7' H x 7' W x 7' D

Cutting and folding work to achieve a minimalist form, Torsion is a transition from horizontal to vertical that provides the illusion of movement. By placing the work on a mound and facing a horizontal building, Torsion turns to the sky in a perpetual motion, emerging out of the ground against a backdrop of linear stillness. By walking around the sculpture, visitors are able to observe different angles and interpret the illusion of movement. The sculpture is nestled alongside the Hetch Hetchy Easement.